

STORY PROMPTS

If you're struggling to come up with an idea, use this list of prompts to help get those creative juices flowing!

I D E A S

A strange spaceship just crashed and landed in your backyard. What happens next?

There's an old, abandoned house at the end of your street that's been empty for years. One day, someone moves in.

Make up a story about where thunder comes from.

There once was a little boy who ate nothing but bananas. What happened to him?

Write a story about a family that can travel in time.

Craft a tale about a lonely monster looking for some friends.

Oh no — your balloon blew away! Write about what happens from the balloon's perspective.

Write about what your life would be like if you turned into a squirrel. What would you do every day?

You go to school one morning to discover your best friend has the case of the hiccups! How can you help them?

A superhero wants to save the world, but they're not very good at using their powers.

Your grandma tells you a shocking secret and you're not allowed to tell anybody else! How do you react to this crazy secret?

Write a story about when your parents were teenagers.

Try making a story that includes these three things: A train, a feathered hat, and a blue water bottle.

A kid and their loyal dog get lost on a forest trail. What happens?